

What could be more little, more tiny, more insignificant than the flat white wafer that we call Holy Communion. Here we are. Here it is. It is tiny. It is not even proper bread. It looks more like a piece of paper.

Jesus says “The man who can be trusted in little things can be trusted in great.”

The first little thing he entrusts us with is money. How do we use our money? Do we cheat people? Are we selfish? Or do we use our money to help people; to help the Church.

The second little thing he entrusts us with are the people around us – our families and friends, our school, our parish, our rulers, our leaders.

Are we prepared to love them and to care for them? Are we prepared to pray for them?

The third little thing he entrusts us with is that tiny wafer. Jesus takes that wafer, he blesses that wafer, he breaks that wafer. “This is my body”, says Jesus.

Can you be trusted with that little wafer?

Can you be trusted with the Body of Christ?

Will you try to be like Jesus?

Will you let Jesus live in your heart?

Will you pray to him every day?

Jesus says, “The man who can be trusted in little things can be trusted in great”.
